

Ms. Amy L. Rossi
Director, MSCCN Training Development and Cofounder

Amy Rossi is a proud Army spouse, married to Daniel T. Rossi for almost 12 years. She has three beautiful sons Jonah, Jordan, and Jackson Jeffrey. Amy has moved five times with the military and has lived in New York, Hawaii, Virginia, and Maryland.

What is the worst thing about military life? “Saying see you later to dear military friends!”

What is the best thing about military life? “Getting to reinvent yourself every three to five years!”

Amy has worked with military families for over eleven years. Her professional experience ranges from educational testing and counseling, to training, to conflict management and issue resolution, professor, and career counselor. Her volunteer experience with the military ranges from Family Readiness Group Leader, to AFAP Facilitator and Delegate, to AFTB Master Trainer, to OP Ready Reunion Trainer, and Spouse Club Historian/Treasurer.

Credentials: MSA in HR, BS in Communications, Qualified MBTI and SII Administrator/Evaluator, Credentialed Family Development Worker with Cornell University, Published Author, and Certified Job Search Counselor.