

Jennifer Quimby
MSCCN Grant Administrator

Air Force spouse Jennifer Quimby was born and raised in England. In her early 20s, she moved to Germany and started working for the US Air Force at Rhein-Main AFB where she later met and married an Air Force sergeant. They have two daughters and, after 20 years traveling to various Air Force locations world-wide, the family retired in Florida.

While traveling with the military, Jennifer experienced the challenges of trying to find work, both on and off-base. She tried her hand at many jobs, including being an Avon representative, assisting with realty sales, and working from home. After her husband retired and the family was finally settled in one place, she started work as an Executive Assistant and was also able to complete three associate degrees. Her life-long ambition is to complete her BA in Business after many years of juggling family, work, and school.

After experiencing both the joys and challenges of military life, she is excited to play a small part in assisting other military spouses to find opportunities in today's challenging job market. She firmly believes that being married to the military brings a special perspective to life and work.
